The Six Priorities

1. Make contact with those to whom you have been assigned to minister. This can be done in a variety of ways. Reach out to them in person; by phone, text message, or social media; or even with a letter.
2. Get to know them. Learn about their lives, relationships, and circumstances. By doing so, you'll be able to anticipate their needs and either meet those needs yourself or call on your ward leadership to access additional resources.
3. Become a friend by letting them know that you care. Make the effort to be the kind of friend that they need.
4. Pray for them and for guidance. Nobody knows the needs of those you are assigned to minister to better than Heavenly Father. Seek His help and pray for inspiration to serve them in the best way—His way. Finding inspired answers to questions you have and using all available methods for making contact are key to inspired ministering.
5. Minister to them in individualized and customized ways to fit their needs.
6. Maintain the relationship. Life can change quickly for people. Regularly touch base with those to whom you minister, and you'll be better prepared to help and serve them when needs arise.
